TEXT

This treemap visualization illustrates the distribution of costs over time, categorized by Who, Destination, Type, and Cost.

The vertical axis represents dates from June 23 to July 25. The horizontal axis represents the breakdown of costs into four main categories: Who, Destination, Type, and Cost.

The segments are color-coded as follows:

- Who: Dark blue
- Destination: Light blue
- Type: Green
- Cost: Red

The size of each segment indicates its relative contribution to the total cost for that day. The segments are stacked horizontally for each date, with the 'Who' category being the largest component throughout the period.

This horizontal treemap visualization displays the breakdown of costs across various categories for each day from September 14 to 21. The columns represent the time period ('When'), the responsible party ('Who'), the category description ('Description'), the type of cost ('Type'), and the total cost ('Cost'). Each row corresponds to a specific date. The size of the black rectangles represents the magnitude of the cost for that category on that day. A vertical white line is present in every row, likely indicating a reference point or a specific category.

The date and time corresponds to the local time where the mobile was located.

TEXT

A treemap visualization illustrating the hierarchical breakdown of costs across five main categories: When, Who, Destination, Type, and Cost. The Cost category is the root node, which is further divided into When, Who, Destination, and Type. Each of these four categories is subdivided into several smaller nodes, represented by black rectangles of varying sizes. The total area of the Cost node is approximately 100%, while the When, Who, Destination, and Type nodes together account for about 80% of the total area.

Category	Sub-Category	Area (%)
Cost	When	~25%
	Who	~20%
	Destination	~15%
	Type	~15%
	Total	100%
